Excerpt: ... must be our first and most necessary conclusions from the common language of Scripture respecting these following points:--1. The distinctive characters of the Church. 2. The Authority of the Church. 3. The Authority of the Clergy over the Church. 4. The Connection of the Church with the State. These are four separate subjects of question; but we shall not have to put these questions in succession with each of the four Scriptural meanings of the word Church, for evidently its second and third meaning may be considered together, as merely expressing the general or particular conditions of the Visible Church, and the fourth signification is entirely independent of all questions of a religious kind. So that we shall only put the above inquiries successively respecting the Invisible and Visible Church; and as the two last,--of authority of Clergy, and connection with State--can evidently only have reference to the Visible Church, we shall have, in all, these six questions to consider: 1. The distinctive characters of the Invisible Church. 2. The distinctive characters of the Visible Church. 3. The Authority of the Invisible Church. 4. The Authority of the Visible Church. 5. The Authority of Clergy over the Visible Church. 6. The Connection of the Visible Church with the State. 1. What are the distinctive characters of the Invisible Church; that is to say, What is it which makes a person a member of this Church, and how is he to be known for such? Wide question-- Any reference, except to Scripture, in notes of this kind would of course be useless: the argument from, or with, the Fathers, is not to be compressed into fifty pages. I have something to say about Hooker; but I
