This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1845. Excerpt: ... THE RAILWAY QUEEN. BY THE IRISH WHISKEY-DRINKER. have you got any Spitzbergen and Patagonia? I am sorry to say that I have. Why so?--they are at two premium. But I bought at three-and-a-half. Dont be afraid: hold on. Hold on! I cant help myself. There is actually no business doing in them. The surest sign that they are to have a sudden and tremendous rise. When? At the proper time. Hold on! This hint was given to me by a woman--one of consideration,--with a look and tone that would indicate a knowledge of things behind the curtain. I hope that she knows a move or two in the chequered game: if not, as far as I am concerned, it will not be of much consequence. I shall pay for my lesson; and thats all. Small men ought to stick to their trade of basket-making. And I shall profit by my lesson, you may depend on it. Une fois philosophe; deux fois joueur determine. Perhaps the men think they have the game all to themselves; that they alone are railroad mad. If they do, they are grievously mistaken. What is it that makes London by far less dull just now than it usually is during the autumn? Numbers of the beau sexe have remained behind to look after the main point, for emphatically is railroad speculation considered the main point amongst, I am sorry to say, too many of them at this moment. Paris, fur the same reason, has been scarcely more gay at any season of the year than the present. A certain fashionable and fascinating marchioness (an Englishwoman too), a resident of the gay capital of delights, won twenty-five thousand pounds there a few weeks back in one belle swoop. You would like to know how she did it. A brilliant company were assembled at the hotel of a Russian nobleman in the Faubourg St. Honore; and between one of the...
