

Beyond Shanghai, a Journey through Old China

China has grown into a modern industrialized society, and one of our Worlds great trading nations, re-shaping the appearance of its cities, and the surrounding countryside. Many local people, and visitors to the new China often wonder what the China of old was like, before the nations great leap forward into becoming an industrial power. Beyond Shanghai, is essentially a journey into old China, during the start of the 1920s, when Harold Speakman traveled beyond the city of Shanghai, in a houseboat, and by road to some of the more scenic, and traditional areas of this unique country. Bringing back a glimpse into the China of the past, with original illustrations from another age.
