

The Works of Charles Lamb: Five Volumes in Three (3 Volume Set)

3-volume casebound set in brown cloth with double-line blind embossed border on boards and gold lettering on spines. Stated A New Edition and Five Volumes in Three signifying that the publisher originally produced this work as a five-volume set which is now condensed into three volumes. From the Preface: The share of the Editor in these volumes can scarcely be regarded too slightly. The successive publications of Lambs works form almost the only events of his life which can be recorded; and upon these criticism has been nearly exhausted. Little, therefore, was necessary to accompany the Letters, except such thread of narrative as might connect them together; and such explanations as might render their allusions generally understood. The readers gratitude for the pleasure which he will derive form these memorials of one of the most delightful of English writers is wholly due to his correspondents, who have kindly intrusted the precious relics to the care of the Editor, and have permitted them to be given to the world; and to Mr. Moxon, by whose interest and zeal they have been chiefly collected. At the time of publication, some of these correspondents were still living (Wordsworth, Southey, Manning, Barton, Proctor, Silman, Patmore, Walter, Wilson, Field, Robinson, Dyer, Cary, Ainsworth). Volume 1: 429 pp; Volume 2: 462 pp; Volume 3: 437 pp.
