Not illustrated. 1874 Excerpt: ...in a dish is come a fish, sent by the Archbishop: tis not here, for he gave me no beer. The second h in Archbishop ought not to be repeated. Unless the colon is put as I have put it, the grammar is ruined; and is ought clearly to be tis. There, in Mr. Randolphs lines is, I suspect, a misprint; for it rhymes badly and gives no sense. The man is talking of his own dinner-table, here. Lyttelton. The only perfect reproduction of a couplet in a different idiom occurred when the Archbishop of York sent a salmon to the Chronicler of Malmesbury, with request for a receipt in verse, which was handed to bearer in duplicate:-- Mittitur in disco mihi piscis ab Archiepisco-Po non ponetur nisi potus. Pol! mihi detur. Im sent a fyshe, in a dyshe, by the Archbish-Hop is not put hero. Egad! ho sent no beere. Sense, rhvthm, point, and even pun are here miracurasly reproduced.--The JULu/nes of Father Prout. Ed. Mod, 1860. Preface, p. v. T. W. C. In the monkish Latin distich on the Archhishops present of a fish, the second line is imperfect. I remember it used to read as a complete hexameter, and, I think, thus:--po non ponatur, quia potum non mihi datur. W. P. P. JfficcAMicus wishes to remind Mr. Rahdolph that this couplet was written in A.d. 1170-1 Hungary (5 S. i. 107.)--Histories of the War of Independence in Hungary during 1848:--1.
