

How the Brigadier Slew the Fox (A Gerard Story): (Arthur Conan Doyle Masterpiece Collection)

There were plunderers among the French, and men of violence, gamblers, duellists, and rous. All these could be forgiven, for others of their kidney were to be found among the ranks of the English. But one officer of Massenas force had committed a crime which was unspeakable, unheard of, abominable; only to be alluded to with curses late in the evening, when a second bottle had loosened the tongues of men. The news of it was carried back to England, and country gentlemen who knew little of the details of the war grew crimson with passion when they heard of it, and yeomen of the shires raised freckled fists to Heaven and swore. And yet who should be the doer of this dreadful deed but our friend the Brigadier, Etienne Gerard, of the Hussars of Conflans, gay-riding, plume-tossing, debonair, the darling of the ladies and of the six brigades of light cavalry.
