

The works of Robert Browning

The Centenary Edition of The Works of Robert Browning was originally published in 10 volumes by John Murray (Publishers) Ltd., London in 1912, the 100th anniversary of the poet's birth. AMS Press reprinted the set in a 10-volume facsimile edition in 1966. The works were edited by F.G. Kenyon, who wrote introductions. All poems contained in the previous complete editions (those of 1888-9 and of 1896) are included, Kenyon writes in his preface, with the addition of a few short poems of various dates, which, though already published, have not hitherto been taken into the collected editions. Kenyon notes: The text followed is that of the last edition supervised by the poet (that of 1888-9), with the correction of a few oversights, and with the addition of a numeration of lines in all the longer poems. A portrait is prefixed to each volume. The texts are arranged in nearly chronological order. The introductions prefixed to the several volumes are in the main biographical and bibliographical, Kenyon explains. They aim at showing the position which each poem holds in Brownings life, the circumstances of its composition, and its historical setting (if any).
